ST. MARY'S NOTES.

That the art of extempore speaking is included among the ambitions of the and the pupils of the first academic class on Monday and Friday afternoons of last week. The exercise was in the form of a contest in oral English, the subject matter being one of the requirements scheduled on the supplementary course of reading in this class; and as such it was a very creditable showing of the independent work of these agreest students. dependent work of these earnest students. The several periods of Greek literature were discussed consecutively by the Misses M. McDonough, A. Seen, W. McDonough, M. Hughes, N. Smith and L. Broyles, the result being a complete, though necessarily rapid review of that most interesting branch of universal lit-

The second series of lectures covered likewise the successive stages of Roman literature, the speakers being the Misses Heckart, L. White, M. Sullivan, M. Reno, B. Michaelis, F. Sullivan and R. Whately. At the conclusion of this exercise votes ogether with the critical notes taken by the contesting parties themselves, being all weighed and counted, the honors par were dispensed as follows: Best on the Roman side, Miss Angeline Heckart, who received twenty-three votes out of twenty-six; best on the Greek side, Miss M. Hughes, with eighteen votes out of twenty-six; and, as a whole, the Greek side won by just a single vote. The first academis being now engaged in the study of Greek and Roman history, found the discussions profitable, as well
